

The Single Gene Complex Needs Service

working with families with genetic conditions

Our purpose:

- to work with people in Scotland who have complex needs as a result of living with a genetic condition.

Our help includes:

- listening to you and finding out more about the challenges you face
- giving you time to talk about your condition and how it affects your family
- looking at ways of managing your care
- supporting you to help us plan and co-ordinate care for you and your family
- providing information about your genetic condition
- suggesting other helpful organisations
- providing training, education and information for people involved in your care
- acting as a point of contact between the health service, social services, voluntary sector, education and employers.

How can you contact us?

Call 0131 537 1062 (Monday to Friday, 9am - 4pm)

